SEMI-ANNUAL REPORT OF HANCOCK COUNTY CHAMBER COMMERCE

So that the Citizens of Hancock County might know of the activities and accomplishments of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce since its reactivation on December 1st, 1945 the following are a list of the new enterprises which have begun operations:

HELEN ANN PRODUCTS—Packaging of Food Products.
HANCOCK STOCK FEED CO.—Dehydration of sweet potatoes for live stock feed, poultry feeds and farm products and implements.
FAVRE'S BAKERY—Bakers of bread and cakes.

GENERAL SHEET METAL WORKS—Roofers and all sheet metal work.

AUTO PAINT SHOP—Roland Taillac, Auto body painters.

In addition the chamber was directly responsible for bringing the Minneapolis Baseball team here for spring training and for which Bay St. Louis and Hancock County have received so much favorable comment.

In furthering the industrial growth of our County these will soon be in operation, the Benith Pecan Processing Co., a new firm composed of local men who will manufacture and distribute pecan pralines and other pecan delicacies by mail order. The firm has leased the Vuirin building on Main Street.

A sea food packing plant composed of two Beaumont, Texas men will soon begin construction of a modern packing plant on Bayou Caddy and will employ from 50 to 60 people on beginning operations.

Mr. V. A. Leveau of New Orleans and Waveland has just about completed an Ice Cream manufacturing plant at Waveland and contemplates the erection of a steel fabricating plant. The both of these new industries will afford an opportunity to the unemployed to secure work at an attractive wage scale.

If a suitable location can be obtained there will be a broom and mop manufacturing plant established here which will give employment to a considerable number of people.

Your chamber has also been making exhaustive study on the possibilities of bringing a paper and pulp manufacturing plant in this county and from all indications the progress made so far is very encouraging, however, this being such a large project it will take quite some time to work out the details, nevertheless, if it materializes, the consensus of opinion is that our employment problems will be solved for all times as this enterprise will employ a total of approximately 1000 people.

The Bay Ice Company of which Mr. Harry Sumrall is owner is now constructing 500 cold lockers for the use by the citizens of this County at an annual rental per locker.

The Gulf Chevrolet Co., A. E. Voight owner has just recently spent an additional $2500.00 in precision equipment to service any make car. This firm has been approved by the U. S. Government for war veterans training under the G. I. Bill of Rights of rehabilitation plan.

The large double sided NEON sign reading "BAY ST. LOUIS" which was previously announced through this paper would be erected at the foot of the highway bridge is practically completed and is expected to be erected at that location in the next 30 days or sooner. This will be a three color sign and will be the most attractive on the entire coast front.

The Emile Gex building where the Chamber occupies offices is now undergoing a new paint job on the outside and on completion will make an added attraction on Main St.

The foregoing is a summary of what the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce has done and is doing to make our COUNTY a healthy, happy and thriving community.

Hancock County USDA Council Discussed Emergency Food Program

Meeting in special session here on April 2 the Hancock County USDA Council discussed the world food crisis and drafted plans for participation of Hancock County in a nationwide Emergency Food Program. This program is designed to increase conservation and production of food so that every pound of food possible may be sent to starving people in other countries.

Secretary of Agriculture, Clinton P. Anderson, has designated Mr. R. W. Seal, chairman of Hancock County Agricultural Conservation Committee, as manager for the Emergency Food Program in this county. Mr. Seal has received instructions from Mr. T. M. Patterson, state PMA director and also state manager for the Emergency Food Program, to enlist the aid of all agricultural agency leaders in the county in working out production and conservative programs and in organizing all available forces for carrying the facts to every man, woman and child in the county personally.

Mr. Seal announces that the county USDA Council at this meeting adopted as conservation goals for Hancock County a reduction of 40% in consumption of wheat products and a reduction of 20% in consumption of food fats and oils. To assist in reaching these goals each individual in the county is being asked to use an average of one slice of bread or one biscuit less each meal throughout 1946, and for each family to reduce its use of lard, salad oils, and other fats by one half a pound per person each month.

It is estimated that for the average Mississippian a 40% reduction in the use of wheat products, including bread, biscuits, rolls, crackers, cakes, macaroni, spaghetti, etc., would be equivalent to four slices of bread daily. If each person should eat three less biscuits or slices of bread daily, or the equivalent of this in other wheat products, and in addition cut down wastage by one slice of bread daily, then the county goal would be reached. U. S. Department of Agriculture figures show the average use of lard, salad oils, and other fats to be 31 pounds per person annually. To achieve the goal in fat conservation each person would have to use one half pound each month.

"We are asking" says Mr. Seal that civic and business organizations to school and church leaders as well as help in carrying the facts of this program to all our people and to encourage their full cooperation.

According to Mr. C. C. Stone, chairman of the county USDA Council, the following are among the suggestions adopted for conserving food: Use all the food cooked; waste nothing. Cafes, restaurants and other public eating places can participate in the program by serving only one piece of bread or one roll per meal unless more is requested.

For the reduction in wheat, housewives and public eating places can substitute Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, corn bread, grits, and oatmeal which are available in abundance. Housewives and cooks are urged to save faton drippings and other kitchen fats for cooking purposes, and any fats which become too rancid for this purpose should be turned in to fat salvage collectors.

Poultrymen are urged to cull and sell low producers from their laying flocks to save grain and increase profit. For increasing production, grow home gardens, can and store surplus foods, raise more sweet potatoes cowpeas and dry beans.

SWEET POTATO TALK

Diversification in agriculture has long been recognized as one of the most important factors in the success of a farming operation. It is advocated by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the Agricultural Extension Service, leading farmers and business men who have long ago seen the folly of the one-crop system.

One of the most important contributions to the increased income of farmers in any section of the country has been the inclusion of the growing of livestock in their diversification program. During the past few years, considerable progress has been made in the development of the livestock industry, both from the standpoint of improvement in quality and in the number produced throughout Hancock County. If there is to be further material increase in livestock production and our farmers and livestock growers are to realize the maximum possible profit from their operations a greater production of feed is necessary.

If the livestock industry is to be profitable in this State, the yields of our feed crops must compare favorably with the yields in those states now engaged in profitable livestock production. Statistics reveal that the average yield of corn in the corn belt is three times as great as our average yield. Corn is the basic carbohydrate feed. The difference in the yield of other grain crops is about as great. This leads us only one conclusion—before the Southern farmer can compete with his midwestern neighbor in the production of beef cattle, dairy products and hogs, he must find a carbohydrate feed crop which can be produced in quantity and at a cost which will be comparable with the yield and cost of production of corn in the Midwest.

The sweet potato seems definitely to offer such a crop. This crop is well adapted to the soil in our section of Mississippi and the climate will produce much more feed per acre than corn. Feeding tests have shown that pound for pound, the solids of sweet potatoes are equal to those of corn for livestock feeding purposes.

Installation of the Beaird Challenor Model Dehydrator has been completed. Within the next few days it is hoped that connections for both gas and electricity will be made. When this is done, J. B. Beaird Company of Shreveport, manufacturers of the dehydrator, will be notified and a test run will be made. If you have not yet seen this machine—the first to be installed in the State of Mississippi—the operators of the Hancock Stock Feed Company extend to each and everyone a cordial invitation to do so.

The meeting was called and held at the home of Mrs. Eugene Mogabgab on South Beach and proved extremely interesting to the ladies attending. Unfortunately, the weather was very bad, a heavy rainstorm naturally keeping many from attending, but the few women who braved the weather were extremely gratified with the information they received, Miss May having outlined an excellent program for the meetings with each month scheduled for a different project the next to be instructions on "Dry Cleaning," scheduled for the month of April when everyone will be agreeing to glare and pack away winter apparel and furnishings. While discussing the various projects planned ahead for 12 months, Miss May gave the ladies present some excellent information on preparing foods for deep freezing, one of the most interesting subjects today when our government and all agencies are urging the great need for conservation of all foods and the assistance we must give to feeding the ravaged lands of war-stricken nations.

Under a resolution adopted last week, legislative work will end on April 5, Friday of this week. The official end of the session, however, will not come until April 10, in order that Governor Bailey may have the extra five days to sign bills. # WOMAN POWER

Under our Republican form of government and the American system of free enterprise the American woman has prospered beyond the prophecies of sages and the dreams of poets.

Until the American woman was emancipated under the spirit and surge of American freedom she was pretty much an industrial chattel and domestic slave. Here more than in any other country or period of history woman has come richly into her own. Here she is the favored beneficiary of a system that has produced fabulous wealth and abundant happiness. In no other nation does woman enjoy such freedom and share such purchasing power. Here she holds the purse strings to a currency and cash reserve measured in billions.

About 80 percent of all peacetime purchases made in the United States are made by women. Here she is the beneficiary of life insurance policies that pour billions into her lap.

And while the American woman is our chief spender she is our most effective saver. In her partnership with man she is the one who cuts financial corners and creates countless economies to make ends meet. It is she who saves for the home, for children and for the future.

Many a man who would have gotten nowhere alone is prosperous because of the encouragement and the economies of some vigilant woman watching over the family budget. Our savings accounts speak eloquently of the foresight and frugality of women who have managed the family exchequer.

We count our women customers by the thousands who have skimmed and saved and contributed to our increasing savings and mounting resources.

We are grateful to them for the substantial part they have played in building their bank. We are mindful of their confidence and of our financial responsibility.

How women and girls may get wanted relief from functional periodic pain

Cardui, many women say, has brought relief from the cramp-like aches and pains of functional periodic distress. Taken like a tonic, it should stimulate appetite, aid digestion, thus help build resistance for the "blues" to come. Started 3 days before "your time," it should help relieve pain due to purely functional periodic causes. 72¢ list.

A. & G. THEATRE SUNDAY - MONDAY "KISS AND TELL"

Shirley Temple Has Star Role in Film

Shirley Temple and the character which she plays, Corliss Archer, last first grown-up movie role in Columbia Pictures' "Kiss and Tell," which comes to the A. & G. Theatre Sunday and Monday have both become national institutions. Shirley, through spectacular stardom as a child, Corliss through her sensational rise to fictional fame as the young heroine of F. Hugh Herbert's magazine stories, radio program and stage play, it is no wonder therefore, that "Kiss and Tell" has become the year's most looked-for screen event.

And from advance reports, this young actress, the charming character she plays and the hilarity of the story itself will undoubtedly make the expectancy a complete fulfillment. Shirley, our Hollywood spies say, has come into her own.

The transposition of F. Hugh Herbert's stage play to the screen by the author himself, also has been done, we are told with deft facility and has even gained several points of humor and warmth through the mobility of the camera.

The kisses which Corliss and her friend, Mildred Pringle (Virginia Welles), sell at a USO bazaar and which start a family feud when Mrs. Archer (Katharine Alexander) unwittingly casts a slur at Mildred's character are shown on the screen while they were just talked about on the stage.

Richard Wallace, it would appear, has added another directorial hit to his long list.

LOOK TO 4-H MEMBERS FOR HELP IN MEETING WORLD FAMINE CRISIS

Every rural boy and girl in the nation can help stave off what may be the worst food famine abroad in history. Participants in the 1946 National 4-H Field Crops Activity have an exceptional opportunity to contribute to this cause. The activity, which is conducted under the direction of the Extension Service, is a highly important part of the 4-H Food for Famine Relief Program.

In a special message to 4-H members, Chester C. Davis, chairman of the Famine Emergency Committee, has urged "increasing plantings of critical crops, especially wheat, corn, soybeans and dry beans in line with higher national production goals."

Mr. Davis adds: "You can help spread an understanding of a world's food needs and America's part in meeting those needs."

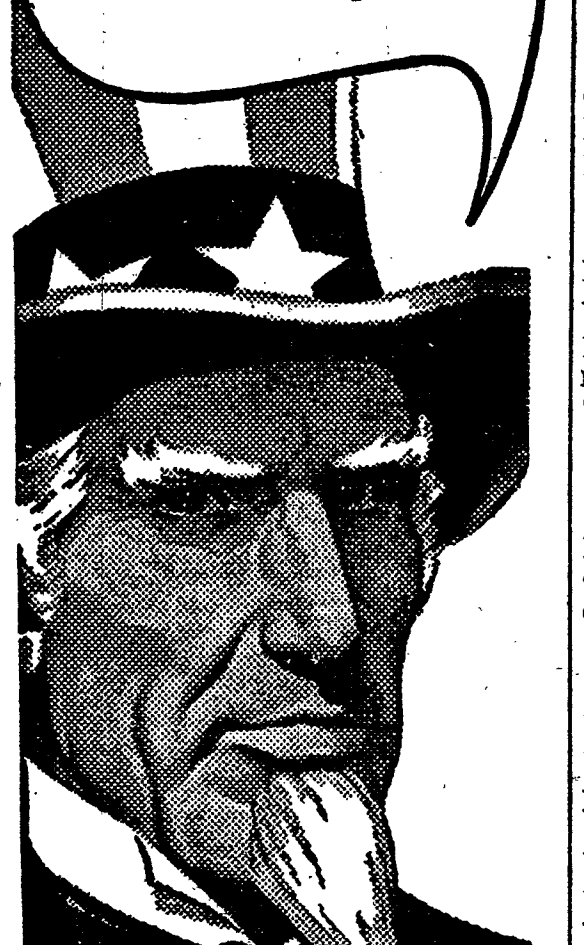

Four-H Club members can boost output of the field crops by careful selection of seed, adoption of better crop production methods, and most proficient use of available farm machinery, all of which they learn thru participation in the activity.

Outstanding 4-H records of field crops production and conservation will receive recognition in the form of honor awards donated by International Harvester Company. These awards comprise gold-filled medals to county winners, educational trips to the 25th Anniversary National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago to state Champions, and $200 Fowler McCormick scholarships to national winners.

County extension agents will furnish complete information regarding this activity.

ORTIE THEATRE SUNDAY - MONDAY "SCARLET STREET"

Starring Edward G. Robinson—Joan Bennett

Every once in a while Hollywood comes through with a surprise picture which has audiences clutching at the edge of theater seats.

Such a film is the Universal release "Scarlet Street," which opens Sunday and Monday at the Ortie Theatre.

It shouldn't actually be called a mere film, for it is an outstanding cinema event in every respect, including the production-direction genius of Fritz Lang.

The canny Lang, impressed by the success of "The Woman in the Window," decided to search for a story in which he could again exploit the talents of the top trio in that melodrama. They are, of course, Edward G. Robinson, Joan Bennett and Dan Duryea. He found it in the outspoken French novel and play, "La Chienne," which was written by Georges de la Fourchardiere and Mouezy-Eon. Then he had Dudley Nichols write the screen-play with Robinson, Miss Bennett and Duryea in mind.

Results Justified
According to audience reaction, the result justified all the hard work which obviously went into the picture. The parts are tailored to the talents of the leading players. The suspense engendered is right down Mr. Lang's alley. You could have heard a pin drop during many long minutes as the film unwound.

The story concerns a modest cashier who has spent twenty years with the same clothing firm in New York. At home he paints pictures to escape the bickering of his abusive wife. Inadvertently, he meets a lovely girl, falls in love with her, and takes all his paintings to her apartment. He doesn't realize that he is being exploited, that the girl is actually in love with another man, who has peddled the pictures for fabulous prices, forging the girl's signature as the original artist. However, when the "little man" discovers how she has been deceiving and swindling him, things start to happen that make chills chase each other up and down your spine. The explosive climax, too amazing to be revealed, had the ticket-buyers gasping.

Robinson is excellent as the painter, playing another graphic role which is certain to win him added audience attention. Miss Bennett is at her best as a treacherous beauty who can sneer at any man but Duryea. The latter does his finest acting job to date, coming through with a performance that makes him certain timber.

Others in the splendid cast, who deserve honorable mention, are Jess Barker, Margaret Lindsey, Rosalind Ivan, and Samuel S. Hinds. "Scarlet Street," incidentally, is the first of the newly formed Diana Productions and is presented by Walter Wanger. If they maintain the pace set in this thriller, they should not have to worry for years to come.

SOIL CONSERVATION POINTS THE WAY TO BETTER FARM YIELD

Mississippi Farmers Place Over 22,000,000 Acres Under Treatment

Mississippi agriculture, determined to hold its war-expanded markets by maintaining quality production, has placed more than 22,000,000 acres of cropland under soil conservation service.

"This growing emphasis on care of the soil promises not only to keep in full service the acreage which contributed so much to the war effort but also to produce foods of a quality that will up-grade the American diet," said Harvey A. Baum, head of produce-buying operations for A & P Food Stores, distributor of Mississippi cabbage, tomatoes, peas and beans and potatoes.

"In many soil conservation districts during the war our field buying offices found production of fruits and vegetables up as much as 20 per cent. Much of this improvement was due to pre-war soil-saving practices."

Baum pointed out that at the present time more than half of the nation's agricultural land—nearly 800,000,000 acres on 3,592,000 farms in 45 states—is under such planning, more than 217,000 Mississippi farms

Died: On Friday evening, March 29 at 8 o'clock Rose Choina, wife of the late Thomas Fayard, mother of Albert, Harold, Thomas, James and Erlene Fayard and Mrs. L. Scortino, sister of Dominick Choina and Mrs. May Soloise of Bay St. Louis.

Mrs. Fayard died at the home of being enrolled.

Besides improving the quality and increasing the volume of farm production, cropland conservation coincides with a growing efficiency in the distribution of food, he said. The war emphasized the need of better packaging, speedier shipment, more effective refrigeration and a concerted war on waste.

Combined with such improvements in distribution, the efforts of farmers to produce more efficiently will mean a general reduction of the nation's food bill and an increase in farm income, Baum added.
